Committee Report (Substituted)

This analysis utilizes the House Committee Report, which is the most recent version available to the Senate Research Center. There were no amendments to H.B. 2424 on the House floor. Amendments made in the Senate committee are incorporated into the section by section portion of this analysis.

BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE

As the principal administrator of tax collection and revenue management, the Comptroller's office relies on its rulemaking authority to facilitate the performance of its duties. Over time, the agency relies on some policies with such frequency that it becomes necessary to codify those policies. The agency's pivotal role in the administration of state funds requires the Comptroller to remain actively involved in the enforcement of every code of the law. Close interaction with every aspect of the law provides the Comptroller's office with an appreciable advantage in modifying or correcting many portions of state law. C.S.H.B. 2424 codifies policies, facilitates enforcement, and makes technical corrections to state law, thus maximizing the agency's resources.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

This bill grants the comptroller of public accounts additional rulemaking authority in SECTIONS 13 and 30.
