AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

A licensed chemical dependency counselor (counselor) is licensed to provide chemical dependency counseling services involving the application of the principles, methods, and procedures of the chemical dependency profession as defined by the profession's ethical standards and the Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities (KSAs); these standards are currently set by rule in Texas Administrative Code, Title 25, Chapter 441. Counselors are in short supply statewide, which impacts chemical dependency services provided in the child protective services, healthcare, and criminal justice systems. Counselors are leaving the system and recruitment is down for a variety of reasons: chemical dependency counselors, unlike other licensed professionals, who relapse have their licenses revoked with no ability to return to the profession; trainees and interns in rural areas often have difficulty finding clinical training centers in which to complete a requirement relating to supervised hours; chemical dependency counselors are not allowed by current law to participate in peer counseling programs in order to restore their licensure after a relapse; providers that wish to train future counselors and interns must become certified as clinical training centers, which is unlikely to occur in facilities where chemical dependency counseling is not the primary function; and because Texas does not currently recognize the International Certification and Reciprocity Consortium on the state license, counselors are unable to practice in multiple states.

As proposed, S.B. 155 amends language pertaining to licensing provisions of chemical dependency counselors by ensuring that work experience obtained for licensure is supervised by a certified clinical supervisor, requiring documentation be provided to the Department of State Health Services demonstrating that the applicant has access to a peer assistance program, and requiring all certification information to be printed on the face of the license. The bill will strengthen the quality and availability of licensed chemical dependency counselors while ensuring accountability in the profession.
