AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Under current law, the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) has no obligation to accept an inmate who appeals his conviction unless his sentence exceeds 10 years. As a result, inmates who are ineligible for bond pending appeal because they have been (a) convicted of certain aggravated offenses (e.g., aggravated robbery, aggravated sexual assault, indecency with a child) or (b) sentenced to exactly 10 years and who have appealed their sentence are ineligible for appeal bond per statute.

As of February 28, 2013, 36 of the 89 people in the Harris County jail awaiting disposition of their appeals were ineligible for an appeal bond under state law.

Of these 36 convicted offenders who are ineligible for release on bond, 11 have been awaiting disposition of their appeals for over one year. Two of these have been in jail over 900 days. This group took up close to 10,000 bed days at a cost to the county of nearly $500,000. These numbers obviously fluctuate, but they are not insubstantial. A similar analysis in May, 2012, showed that 52 of the 142 inmates in jail awaiting disposition of their appeals were ineligible for an appeal bond. The cost to the county was more than 18,300 bed days and over $790,000.

As proposed, S.B. 1704 updates Article 42.09 (Commencement of Sentence; Status During Appeal; Pen Packet), Code of Criminal Procedure, by striking the "more than 10 years" requirement and requires TDCJ to transfer prisoners on appeal who are currently ineligible for bail bond.

As proposed, S.B. 1704 amends current law relating to the transfer of certain inmates to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice following pronouncement of the inmate's sentence.
