AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Current law authorizes judges to issue emergency orders to protect the victims of family violence. The issuing court reports these orders to law enforcement, enabling them to keep victims safe from further violence. However, under current law and practice, there are often delays in the execution of the order. Victims are not notified that the order has been issued, and law enforcement officers may go to the scene of a family violence investigation unaware of an existing order for emergency protection. In some counties, it can take up to a month for the order to be reported. Delays in notification make enforcement more difficult and pose serious risks for victims. In addition, one form of protective order, a magistrate's order for emergency protection, is not currently reported to the Texas Crime Information Center (TCIC), which collects offender information for the use of law enforcement across the state and across the country.

S.B. 737 amends Article 17.292, Code of Criminal Procedure, to require courts to send protective orders to law enforcement by the end of the next business day and to permit transmission in electronic form. The bill also requires orders to be sent to victims at the same time. In addition, S.B. 737 shortens the timeline that law enforcement has to enter the orders from the tenth day after receiving the order to the third day. Lastly, S.B. 737 amends Section 411.042, Government Code, to require the reporting of magistrates' orders for emergency protection to TCIC. These measures will help victims who depend on protective orders for their safety. (Original Author's/Sponsor's Statement of Intent)

S.B. 737 amends current law relating to certain protective orders and magistrate's orders for emergency protection.

This bill does not expressly grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.
