AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

School districts and charter schools that serve students with disabilities who reside in residential facilities (RFs) are required to submit a report to the Texas Education Agency called an RF tracker report. An RF is a facility that provides 24-hour care to students who reside there for detention, treatment, foster care, or any non-educational purpose. Students are often in RFs because it is safer than their home environment. These reports are time-consuming and schools either have to hire additional staff to complete the report or pull existing staff from student support services to compile the report.

However, as most of the information required for the report is already available in the Public Education Information Management System (PEIMS), interested parties hold that the process can be streamlined and made more cost-effective by adding a new PEIMS code for students with disabilities who reside in RFs. S.B. 2080 requires school districts to include how many of their students have disabilities and are required to be tracked by the residential facility monitoring system in their PEIMS reports. The code would automatically pull the information requested for the RF tracker report and save schools time and money. If enacted, S.B. 2080 will apply beginning in the 2017 school year. S.B. 2080 amends current law relating to a requirement that school districts and open-enrollment charter schools report certain information regarding children with disabilities who reside in residential facilities.
