AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

In 2020, a $569 million Midland Independent School District school bond election passed on election night, failed after mail-in ballots were counted, and passed again after a recount. However, the bond failed again when a box of missing votes was found. While Texas law requires election judges and clerks to undergo training programs, it does not account for election administrators.

S.B. 231 will ensure greater election integrity by requiring the secretary of state to administer training to county election administrators in the same manner it does for election judges and clerks.

S.B. 231 amends current law relating to training for county election officers.
